Here are 5 key benefits of Agile coaching that you may have never considered

KEY BENEFITS OF AGILE COACHING EVERY ENTERPRISE MUST KNOW

1. BETTER COLLABORATION
   An exceptional Agile training program can offer a great jumpstart to an organization looking to implement Agile methods in their current workflow with hand-holding on all Agile working best practices. The early days are most difficult and the coach can really help keep team's effort on track.
   An experienced Agile coach brings integrative methods for teams working across geographies and distinct cultures, but having a common Agile interest. A collective set of definitions that best elucidate Agile terminologies and working practices can create an effective communication channel throughout the organization.

2. IMPROVED COMMUNICATION
   Communicating the need for Agile methodology is essential to inspire teams towards embrace, adoption, and then on Agile efficiently. A coach builds out a vision showcasing the intrinsic worth of Agile, how it develops the process and bolsters the engagement with customers. A coach will strengthen the need for communication as the basic foundation of Agile methodology.

3. TRANSFORMATION BACKLOG
   An Agile transformation must be piloted like an Agile project, which creates the need for a coach to create a transformation backlog. The transformation backlog is a list of work items created by a coach to evolve an organization into an Agile process. It can also be used to highlight major developments in the Agile process.

4. CONTINUOUS IMPROVEMENT
   Corresponding to the importance of Agile implementation is the continuous need to measure the organizational growth that Agile adoption brings with it. A coach helps in setting up metrics to assess the amount of Agile adoption and also looks continuously at refining the practices. That's how teams grow into becoming high performing Agile units.
